

Aotearoa New Zealand Association of Play Therapy Manatōpū Constitution

1. Preamble

- 1.1. This constitution sets out the Principles and Obligations, Purposes, Objectives, Membership, Appointment of the Board and Executive Officers, and the Conduct of meetings of the Aotearoa New Zealand Association of Play Therapy Manatōpū Incorporated (“the Society”).
- 1.2. Our Society is underpinned by a commitment to Virginia Axline’s eight principles of Child-Centred Play Therapy (“CCPT”). We recognise the unique place of Tangata whenua as first peoples of this land, and, honouring our obligations under Te Tiriti o Waitangi. We view these principles and obligations as complementary and compatible, together forming the weave of our kete of knowledge, from which we draw as individual practitioners and members of this Society.

2. Principles and Obligations

- 2.1. Kāwanatanga (governorship) – helps us think about our work as a form of stewardship, and that the client (individual, couple, group, organisation, student or learners and educators) has given kāwanatanga in relation to their information to the play therapist for the purposes of healing, cure, growth, or learning. This principle reflects the CCPT principles of establishing rapport, maintaining respect for the child, letting the child lead the way and that therapy cannot be rushed.
- 2.2. Tino rangatiratanga (sovereignty) – is vested in the client. We recognise that people in therapeutic relationships have different roles and, therefore, different duties of care and responsibility, and, whilst these may be mutual, they are asymmetrical. This complements the CCPT principles of accepting the child completely, establishing a feeling of permissiveness, maintaining respect for the child, letting the child lead the way and using limitations wisely.
- 2.3. Ōritetanga (equitable outcomes) – reflects the CCPT commitment to mutual consent and valid consideration in our practice as play therapists. It also supports the CCPT principles of establishing rapport, accepting the child completely, establishing a feeling of permissiveness, maintaining respect for the child and that therapy cannot be rushed. Our Members are encouraged to be aware of their relationship to the world around them, to effectively choose their own responses, and to be socially responsible in their behavior.
- 2.4. Wairuatanga (spiritual freedom) – Implementing wairuatanga involves a respect for the client as a fellow human being. This reflects the CCPT principles of recognising and reflection of feelings and maintaining respect for the child. These principles support our Members’ commitment to carrying out relationships without discrimination on the basis of religion, race, colour, creed, disability, nationality, socioeconomic status, gender, age, or sexual preference.
